Click here to print

Glacier scientist: I knew data hadn't been verified

By David Rose

Last updated at 12:54 AM on 24th January 2010

The scientist behind the bogus claim in a Nobel Prize-winning UN report that Himalayan glaciers will have melted by 2035 last night admitted it was included purely to put political pressure on world leaders.

Dr Murari Lal also said he was well aware the statement, in the 2007 report by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), did not rest on peer-reviewed scientific research.

In an interview with The Mail on Sunday, Dr Lal, the co-ordinating lead author of the report's chapter on Asia, said: 'It related to several countries in this region and their water sources. We thought that if we can highlight it, it will impact policy-makers and politicians and encourage them to take some concrete action.

'It had importance for the region, so we thought we should put it in.'

Chilling error: The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change wrongly asserted that glaciers in the Himalayas would melt by Dr Lal's admission will only add to the mounting furore over the melting glaciers assertion, which the IPCC was last week forced to withdraw because it has no scientific foundation.

According to the IPCC's statement of principles, its role is 'to assess on a comprehensive, objective, open and transparent basis, scientific, technical and socio-economic information – IPCC reports should be neutral with respect to policy'.

The claim that Himalayan glaciers are set to disappear by 2035 rests on two 1999 magazine interviews with glaciologist Syed Hasnain, which were then recycled without any further investigation in a 2005 report by the environmental campaign group WWF.

It was this report that Dr Lal and his team cited as their source.

The WWF article also contained a basic error in its arithmetic. A claim that one glacier was retreating at the alarming rate of 134 metres a year should in fact have said 23 metres – the authors had divided the total loss measured over 121 years by 21, not 121.

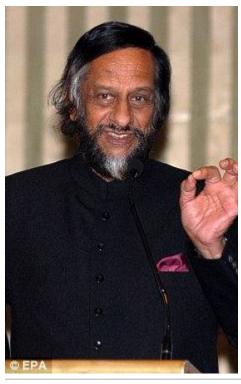

Last Friday, the WWF website posted a humiliating statement recognising the claim as 'unsound', and saying it 'regrets any confusion caused'.

Dr Lal said: 'We knew the WWF report with the 2035 date was "grey literature" [material not published in a peer-reviewed journal]. But it was never picked up by any of the authors in our working group, nor by any of the more than 500 external reviewers, by the governments to which it was sent, or by the final IPCC review editors.'

In fact, the 2035 melting date seems to have been plucked from thin air.

Professor Graham Cogley, a glacier expert at Trent University in Canada, who began to raise doubts in scientific circles last year, said the claim multiplies the rate at which glaciers have been seen to melt by a factor of about 25.

'My educated guess is that there will be somewhat less ice in 2035 than there is now,' he said.

Forced to apologise: Chairman of the IPCC Raj Pachauri

'But there is no way the glaciers will be close to disappearing. It doesn't seem to me that exaggerating the problem's seriousness is going to help solve it.'

One of the problems bedevilling Himalayan glacier research is a lack of reliable data. But an authoritative report published last November by the Indian government said: 'Himalayan glaciers have not in any way exhibited, especially in recent years, an abnormal annual retreat.'

When this report was issued, Raj Pachauri, the IPCC chairman, denounced it as 'voodoo science'.

Having been forced to apologise over the 2035 claim, Dr Pachauri blamed Dr Lal, saying his team had failed to apply IPCC procedures.

It was an accusation rebutted angrily by Dr Lal. 'We as authors followed them to the letter,' he said. 'Had we received information that undermined the claim, we would have included it.'

However, an analysis of those 500-plus formal review comments, to be published tomorrow by the Global Warming Policy Foundation (GWPF), the new body founded by former Chancellor Nigel Lawson, suggests that when reviewers did raise issues that called the claim into question, Dr Lal and his colleagues simply ignored them.

For example, Hayley Fowler of Newcastle University, suggested that their draft did not mention that Himalayan glaciers in the Karakoram range are growing rapidly, citing a paper published in the influential journal Nature.

In their response, the IPCC authors said, bizarrely, that they were 'unable to get hold of the suggested references', but would 'consider' this in their final version. They failed to do so.

The Japanese government commented that the draft did not clarify what it meant by stating that the likelihood of the glaciers disappearing by 2035 was 'very high'. 'What is the confidence level?' it asked.

The authors' response said 'appropriate revisions and editing made'. But the final version was identical to their draft.

Last week, Professor Georg Kaser, a glacier expert from Austria, who was lead author of a different chapter in the IPCC report, said when he became aware of the 2035 claim a few months before the report was published, he wrote to Dr Lal, urging him to withdraw it as patently untrue.

Dr Lal claimed he never received this letter. 'He didn't contact me or any of the other authors of the chapter,' he said.

The damage to the IPCC's reputation, already tarnished by last year's 'Warmergate' leaked email scandal, is likely to be considerable.

Benny Peiser, the GWPF's director, said the affair suggested the IPCC review process was 'skewed by a bias towards alarmist assessments'.

Environmentalist Alton Byers said the panel's credibility had been damaged. 'They've done sloppy work,' he said. 'We need better research on the ground, not unreliable predictions derived from computer models.'

Last night, Dr Pachauri defended the IPCC, saying it was wrong to generalise based on a single mistake. 'Our procedure is robust,' he added.

Comments (36)

Newest Oldest Best rated Worst rated

View all

This really is an embarrassment.

- "Our procedure is robust."
- "Procedure" being:
- 1. Sensationalize the effects of global warming.
- 2. Manufacture reports/cherry-pick data that support your 'sky is falling' scenarios.
- 3. ?
- 4. Profit

robust indeed.

- Hal Michaels, Halifax, Nova Scotia, 24/1/2010 11:49

Click to rate _ Rating 37

Report abuse

Once more the sky is falling global warming people have been proven to manipulate data and lie to keep their pet donkey walking along what ever path they want.

- Tom, aylesbury, 24/1/2010 11:43

Click to rate _ Rating 45

Report abuse

The real scandal here is with the BBC who report these blatant lies as facts then NEVER retract them when they are proved to be wrong.

- Martin, Ashford, 24/1/2010 11:13

Click to rate __Rating 54

Report abuse

Can we please recognize that this was not a mistake, this was a deliberate action to create the myth of man made global wariming, something they have knew about and used as propaganda for ten years. That deliberate false statment brought to the IPCC's attention many times before by external scientists. Pachauri knows he is untouchable, that is why he was not a salaried employee with a contract at the IPCC.

The UN is an uncontrollable machine infilltrated by Pachauris at all levels within the various bodies.

- Jennifer, Doncaster, 24/1/2010 11:09

Click to rate _ Rating 44

Report abuse

Right - that's THE END of all the ACC lies for once and for all...

Got that Brown? Got that Cameron? Got that BBC?

- Rusty, Surrey, 24/1/2010 11:06

Click to rate _ Rating 43

Report abuse

Looks like its all falling apart for global warming - just hope the IPCC pays back the trillions of dollars its received and is prosecuted for misleading the world!

- Janet, Liverpool, 24/1/2010 10:45

Click to rate _ Rating 44

Report abuse

The views expressed in the contents above are those of our users and do not necessarily reflect the views of MailOnline.

Today's headlines Most Read

- Name the Devil Boys: We must not let them hide, say parents of victims
- Judge orders boy, 11, to live with father he hates and hasn't seen for four years
- Now Al Qaeda sends women suicide bombers to target the West
- 'Osama Bin Laden tape' warns Barack Obama of more attacks
- Man in Haiti pulled alive from rubble 11 DAYS after quake after surviving on 'cola, beer and cookies'

- Parents arrested after baby snatched in Nottinghamshire is found on steps of cathedral in Ireland
- 'I'm a battler not a bottler', declares David Miliband, as he insists he's 110% behind Gordon Brown
- Avowed atheist David Miliband sends son to Church of England school
- Iraqi immigrant who killed two British doctors can't be deported because it's a breach of HIS human rights
- For sale: Personal details of millions of Ladbrokes gamblers
- We'll cut public sector pay and bonuses, warns Darling as he attacks Whitehall extravagance
- Nervous Tony Blair works till 3am to prepare for Chilcot grilling
- My mother's legacy allowed me to buy £2.4m Regency villa, says angry Mandelson
- Nuns fight nightclub's 'immoral' lapdancing
- Gordon Ramsay's F-words in India spark a viewer backlash
- Prison works? That's 'repulsively simplistic' says Tory jails spokesman
- Biography that lays bare the childhood of Gordon Brown delayed until after Election
- David Kelly post mortem to be kept secret for 70 years
- The bling beetle: Woman entering U.S. was wearing LIVE gem-encrusted insect as brooch
- Tell my mother I love her: Dying words of the 250th British soldier killed in Afghan war
- How it may not be long before Cadbury's chocolate is made in a Polish factory
- Cherie Blair spares violent queue rage thug because he is a 'religious man'
- Why did Obama turn down offer from No.10 for the famous painting that set him on the road to the White House?
- Prince William's successful tour of Australia cuts Republican support for ditching monarchy
- Miracle escape for passengers as plane catches fire on landing in Iran
- MORE HEADLINES

Venus Williams causes a stir with flesh-coloured knickers

Judge orders boy, 11, to live with father he hates and hasn't seen for four years

Name the Devil Boys: We must not let them hide

David Kelly post mortem to be kept secret for 70 years as doctors accuse Lord Hutton of concealing vital information

Avowed atheist David Miliband sends son to Church of England school

Now Al Qaeda sends women suicide bombers to target the West

Tonight Show host Conan O'Brien makes emotional farewell on U.S. TV as he leaves 'best job in the world'

Parents arrested after baby snatched from legal guardian in Nottinghamshire is found on the steps of cathedral in

Our woman in Canberra - and a 'snub' to Prince William

Cherie Blair spares violent queue rage thug because he is a 'religious man'

I was Hitler's chauffeur... and I was at the bunker to hurl a flaming rag on his petrol-soaked corpse

Muslim hate cleric who urged the killing of Jews and Christians is deported... in a private jet

How long before Cadbury's chocolate is made in this Polish factory?

Hero husband drowns saving new bride after freak storm capsizes boat during Egypt honeymoon

The bling beetle: Woman entering U.S. was wearing LIVE gem-encrusted insect as brooch

Terror scare at Manchester Airport as man attempts to take 'unidentified white powder' onto flight bound for Heathrow

Iraqi immigrant who killed two British doctors can't be deported because it's a breach of HIS human rights

Nervous Tony Blair works till 3am to prepare for Chilcot grilling

Biography that lays bare the childhood of Gordon Brown delayed until after Election

Why did Obama turn down offer from No 10 for the famous painting that set him on the road to the White House?

Britons will be 'forced to hand over NI number, date of birth and signature to get voting rights'

Nuns fight nightclub's 'immoral' lapdancing

Charge of the Lingerie Brigade: How Lord Cardigan's descendant fought back against email sex slurs

For sale: Personal details of millions of Ladbrokes gamblers, offered to the MoS by a mysterious Australian

MOST READ IN DETAIL

